Last Sunday evening lightning partially destroyed the Lutheran church steeple at Lapaz and the plastering of the ceiling was damaged. The barn on the farm of Henry Y. Shirk was struck by lightning and burned with all the hay, oats and wheat that it contained. There was a high wind and considerable hail for about three minutes.

One thing must be admitted. Governor Hanly has suppressed the Taggart gaming house at French Lick. That is true, regardless of the Orange county judges ruling against the state. The main object, in fact the only purpose is accomplished—the state is purged of the disgrace brought on it by the notoriety attached to the gaming houses.

Coincident with intelligence of the settlement of Ohio coal miners' strike comes the intimation that the price of coal will be fractionally advanced "because of the short supply on hand." In other words, the miners and operators having adjusted their differences, now purpose to make the consumer foot the bills. This is a consummation so common that it ordinarily excites little comment.

Whereas our late Assistant Cashier, James A. Gilmore, Jr., has resigned his position in the Bank to accept one in a Western City which will be as he has every reason to believe, to his betterment, the directors of this bank desire to express their appreciation of Mr. Gilmore's ability as a business man, and to spread upon the records of the bank a recognition of his faithful services in the interests of the bank during the many years he was employed there.

And they earnestly hope that in his new field of employment he may achieve the highest success, and their good will and wishes will always follow him.

Death of Mary Brame.
Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Brame, wife of William Brame, died at Epworth hospital, South Bend, Monday afternoon following an operation for appendicitis and complicated intestinal adhesions performed Sunday afternoon. She had been ill but a very short time and the seriousness of her condition was not anticipated until the operation was in progress. She leaves a husband and one son. Mrs. Brame was formerly Miss Mary Oleson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oleson, who live near Walkerton, in this county. She graduated from the Plymouth high school and taught in the district schools of St. Joseph county. She was married to William H. Brame, of South Bend, July 21, 1897, and was an esteemed member and worker in the Methodist church of that city. She was 32 years old.

Miss Oleson made her home with the family of Ed S. Brooke, most of the time, while attending school in Plymouth. She visited in Plymouth a few weeks ago and had many friends here.

Railroad Accident.
Elmer Sullivan, of near Walnut, former school teacher and student at Rochester college, was struck by the north bound four o'clock passenger train on the Lake Erie railroad, Tuesday, and narrowly escaped death under the wheels.

Sullivan was hauling a wagon load of grain from his home to the elevator, and in crossing the railroad track did not see the rapidly approaching train until too late to avoid being struck.

The wagon was hurled fifty feet, completely demolishing it, and scattering the grain. The horses were torn loose from the vehicle, running away and injuring themselves to great extent.

Mr. Sullivan was hurled high into the air, by impact with the train, alighting on his shoulders, the exact extent of the injury is not known at this writing. He was carried to his home where medical assistance was immediately summoned by telephone.—Rochester Republican.

Bryan Must Yield.
If William Jennings Bryan wants the support of the solid South for the presidency in 1908 he must abandon the idea of advocating Government ownership of railroads. Formal notice to this effect will be served upon him in the next few days by Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, one of the most conservative Democrats of the South.

Williams and Bryan will meet in Brussels, where both will attend the interparliamentary Congress as delegates. Mr. Williams will speak for the leaders of the party in his section of the country, who have given much thought to the political menace involved in a government ownership plank in the next Democratic national platform. This is a live issue in the South, more so, in fact, than the people in the other sections of the country can possibly appreciate. It touches the very center of that great bugaboo, race equality, an issue that never fails to wipe out all political lines, so far as the white voter is concerned.

Southern Democrats have been alarmed by recent utterances, both public and private, of Mr. Bryan on questions affecting the management of public utilities. It is apparent that the Nebraskaan contemplates a radical step in regard to the railroads. Mr. Roosevelt having stolen Mr. Bryan's thunder in regard to rate regulation, the latter is now preparing to take even a more advanced position. He has publicly advocated state ownership of railroads, and, unless called off by political friends will urge absolute federal ownership. The trend of his mind in this direction has been indicated in private letters from him in Washington.

Bryan evidently thinks that public sentiment is fast drifting toward advanced socialism and that by the time the next campaign comes around it will be ripe for this line. Bryan's followers say that Congress, having authorized federal regulation of rates, the next logical step is to take over the railroads, bag and baggage. This line of argument will doubtless be very acceptable to the grangers of the West, but Southern politicians say it will not go in their part of the country.

Government ownership of railroads means an end to the "Jim Crow" cars, the continuance of which is imperative, in the opinion of nine-tenths of the people of that section, irrespective of party. In fact, so securely is this idea engrained on them that the political leader who should advocate its abandonment would insure his own political destruction.

Leaders of the John Sharp Williams type believe that Bryan is not aware of the intense feeling of the Southern people on this point, consequently they propose to let him know just what the advocacy of Government ownership of railroads means.

Caused Her Own Death.
The accidental shooting of Mrs. Paul Scheffler of Mishawaka at Pleasant lake, near Edwardsburg, Mich., Sunday afternoon, had a pathetic feature, in that the victim was the cause of her own death.

When Mrs. Robert Lavar, formerly Miss Savidge of Mishawaka, and who resides at Edwardsburg, took the gun and prepared to fire at a mark, Mrs. Scheffler playfully kicked the boat with her foot, intending thereby to make Mrs. Lavar unsteady and spoil her aim. The lady with the weapon was either standing on the boat or against it and being a cripple, her position was changed when the boat was disturbed and in a very instant the rifle was discharged the bullet striking Mrs. Scheffler in the forehead over the eye and causing the tragedy which cast gloom over the happy crowd.

Alcohol From Common Scraps.
After January 1, 1907, you can save your scraps and have them converted into denatured alcohol. It is claimed that the alcohol can be distilled from any kind of vegetable matter, including potato peelings, melon rinds, spoiled fruit or garden truck of any kind. A revenue collector in Ft. Wayne gives it as his opinion that the garbage in that city would produce enough alcohol to supply every family in the city with fuel for cooking at an expense far less than is incurred from the use of gasoline. He suggests that the city procure a still and engage in the manufacture of alcohol from garbage.

The Individual Must Decide.
Thomas A. Edison is not one of those who believe that our Government is going to smash, that great combinations of capital have throttled the people, and that the poor are trodden under foot by the rich beyond hope of redemption; and Edison himself has seen the time when he was compelled to live on one borrowed dollar for a week and sleep on a bench in the park.

"This is the golden age for men of brains—even a little brains," says Edison, "and I would rather, much rather, take my chances now, without a friend or a dollar in my pocket, than to go back even twenty years. The world is growing better and stronger all the time. The opportunities for a poor boy or a poor man are greater today than they ever were."

Why did Edison say that? Because the product of his wizard mind has made him a millionaire, and because, being a millionaire, he is able to look back with indifference upon the bitter struggles of his early manhood? No he has analyzed conditions and read the signs of the times, and he gives a reason for his belief, and what is this reason? "Great organizing minds have massed capital, systematized business, eliminated waste of materials and labor and concentrated the forces of production along lines that grow more intelligent and humane every year."

Therefore he says, "the world is crying for men of intelligence. The door of opportunity is open as it never has been open before, for men who have minds even a fraction above what is necessary for a routine mechanical task. It does not matter whether a man be poor or rich, or what his creed or color or origin, he has a better chance now than if he had lived a generation ago—if he can bring intelligence to his work."

There you are—"if." "The world is growing better," says this man, whose struggle against poverty was long and hard. (When he determined to become a telegraph operator, Edison worked and studied twenty hours a day for four months, and he is still a ceaseless toiler. "Genius is only a capacity for hard work," says a great philosopher.) "This is the golden age for men of brains, who had nothing on earth but his brains to start with. "As science is applied to industry more and more, the rewards of intelligence grow greater," says this man, who has worked wonders in the scientific world. "Great organizing minds have created countless opportunities for the men and boys of today, and success is theirs on one condition—the same condition which Edison saw and took advantage of—"if" they can bring intelligence to their work."

It is for the individual to say whether he will be a success or a failure.—Indianapolis Star.

Home Where the Heart Is.
To have a home is something more than to have a resting place, a place where one can eat and sleep and say he has a right against all the world, where no invading foot may tread; where none may venture to dispute authority with its lord. Though all these prerogatives and privileges belong to the home, they do not constitute that place and condition of the heart which is meant by the word home in its high and proper sense. A poet has said, "The home where the heart is" and there is much significance in this beautiful expression.

Where the heart's dear ones are, where it loves to linger and repose, where associations cluster sweet with beautiful memories, where hopes in a bright train come tripping and singing of a "good time coming," of happy days and love-lit faces yet to be enjoyed, when sweetness breathes as naturally as fragrance from a wild flower—"There, there is home." It is true that home is a place, but every place is not a home. The world is full of staying places, but not so full of homes. There is many a gilded palace and seat of wealth, many a house of luxury and ease and place of worldly comfort, that is a world-wide distance from home. Home is affection's constant dwelling place. The interests of that tender spot are so sacred, the flowers around its casements are so delicate, that they are injured even by a breath that has no right there. The home loves though powerful in their strength are strong only in their delicacy. They cannot bear the blast of rudeness or scarring frost of neglect without a wound which a slow to heal. They live only in the sunshine.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

How The People's Drug Store Sell Hyomei, the Guaranteed Cure for Catarrh.

The People's Drug Store has an unusual offer to make to our readers, one that will be of the greatest value to many.

For some years The People's Drug Store has been watching the results from the use of Hyomei, a treatment for Catarrh that cures by breathing medicated air, absolutely without any stomach dosing. The results have been so universally successful that they feel justified in making a public offer to treat the worst case of catarrh in Plymouth with the understanding that if Hyomei does not cure, the treatment will cost absolutely nothing.

People who have spent large sums with catarrh specialists, deriving but little benefit, or the many who have swallowed stomach remedies in the vain hope of curing catarrh, have experienced almost immediate relief from the use of Hyomei, while the continued treatment for a short time, has resulted in a complete and lasting cure.

The regular Hyomei outfit costs only one dollar, and consists of a neat pocket inhaler that can be carried in the purse or vest-pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. If this is not enough for a cure, extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents.

The People's Drug Store guarantees a cure, if Hyomei is used in accordance with directions, or they will refund the money.
